We gladly welcome you to our congregation, trusting that – if you are seeking Christ you will find Him here, if sorrowing you will receive comfort and strength here, if troubled in spirit you will gain the blessing of peace here, if discouraged you will rejoice in encouragement and hope here, if friendless you will find companionship and Christian love here.
That these and other blessings may be yours is our prayer.

Glad To Have An Ox To Sell

A lawyer and a businessman were touring a foreign land. Their guide was a missionary, who also served as interpreter.

"That's a curious picture. I suppose they are poor," said the businessman, pointing to some workers in a field.

"Yes, that's the family of ChiNoui. When the church building was being erected, they were eager to give, but had no money. So they sold the only ox they had and gave the money. This spring they are pulling the plow themselves."

The men were silent for several moments. Then the businessman said, "That must have been a real sacrifice."

"They did not call it that," said the preacher. "They thought it was fortunate they had an ox to sell."

The two men had little to say after that, but when they returned home, the lawyer took a picture of this family to his preacher and told him of the incident. "I want to double my contribution to the church," he said, "and give me some plow work to do. I have never known what sacrifice to the Lord meant. A converted heathen had to teach me. I am ashamed to say that I have never given anything to the church that cost me a thing."

"Verily I say unto you, This poor widow cast in more than all they that are casting into the treasury: for they all did cast in of their superfluity; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living" (Mark 12:43-44).

HOMECOMING 2008:

I am typing this note on Sat. afternoon about 5:00 after just getting home from my flight to Lubbock, TX. I left early Thursday morning. I am really glad that I had the opportunity to attend this year's Homecoming activities. It was very special this year. It was the first one since the passing of Cline Paden in May of 2007. There was a great emphasis placed upon the legacy that he began and left for the training of preachers and world evangelism. This has been the major emphasis of Sunset School of Preaching now known as Sunset International Bible Institute. We also celebrated the terrific accomplishment of the "Let's Go...Make Disciples" capital campaign that was launched three years ago. It was a $12 million fund raising project to enable SIBI to be more financially solvent. The church here had a part in helping reach that goal. The amount raised was unveiled last night in a victory banquet. The goal was surpassed. I will tell you more later. It was so great to see four of my Instructors from the time I was a student in 1971-73: Dayton Keese, Ted Kell, Tex Williams and Ed Wharton. I am grateful that Ed is still on the staff after all these years. He sent his love and greetings to you. I also enjoyed being with Darrell Wallace and Don Smyth. Perhaps I will say more in next week's bulletin. - Wayne

Attending When Out of Town by Roger Campbell

A great number of Christians have to travel to other places in connection with their jobs. Some Christians travel to visit family or friends. And many travel for recreation or vacation purposes. When members of the Lord's church are away from their home congregation, what about attending services on the first day of the week or during mid-week? Some saints of God make it a point to attend services when they are out of town, others are hit and miss, and then there are also those that seemingly make no effort to attend services anytime they are away. What can we say to these things?

First, the need for children of God to attend is not restricted to those times when they are home. Acts 20:6-7 records that Paul and those that were traveling with him assembled with the saints in Troas on the first day of the week. Troas was not the "home church" of Paul and his companions, yet when Sunday rolled around they met with other disciples. Consider also the command of Hebrews 10:25: "Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching." The charge not to forsake the assembling of God's people applies to all children of God, regardless of their geographic location. To say, "We'll be out of town" does not relieve us of our obligation to worship God! Yea, if God's cause is first in our hearts and lives like it should be, then everybody that is going to be traveling with us, as well as the brethren with whom we normally assemble back home, know full well that even though we are away from home, we will plan to attend services.

Second, when possible, plan ahead. Before leaving home, know where you will try to attend services. Many Christian families have made it a point that they will not purposely travel to any location unless they are sure that they will be able to attend services in that area. We commend them for this approach. Also, planning ahead includes actually finding the location of the meeting place and knowing the service times in advance. Many Christians have had the frustrating experience of missing services or arriving late because they were unsure about service times or the exact location of the building. Planning ahead can help avoid that.

Third, when traveling make every effort to find a sound church. If we would not feel comfortable attending an unsound or questionable church in our own neck of the woods, then why would we "just go anywhere" when we are away from home? We know that there are situations that sometimes arise which can make some matters out of our control. But the rule should be this: before leaving home, I'll try my best to learn where I can attend a sound congregation. "Sound doctrine" (Titus 2:1) is the healthy teaching of the Christ. A sound church is one that adheres to that pure teaching. How can I learn the location of a sound church? Try asking for information and recommendations from sound brethren that you know. Some books are available that list the congregations in a given area. However, it is important that we recognize that those books do not guarantee the soundness of the churches that they list. Do not assume that just because a church is listed in a book, then it must be a good one.
